"This kitchen exhibits a high standard of workmanship throughout.

The cabinetry work is exceptional with some great features including the sliding door entrance into a well-designed pantry (the detail of the sliding door no one could match). The detailing of the shelving and the chimney have all been executed with great skill and detail.

The quality is exceptional."

Attard's Kitchens & Cabinetry continually strives to provide quality service and professional workmanship to all of the company's clients. This is achieved by implementing and maintaining non-compromising standards throughout all design and manufacturing processes. Keeping these functions in-house ensures that the company can monitor compliance with these standards every step of the way.

Attard's customer service commences with the initial consultation and design stage and continues with the manufacturing of joinery at the company's factory, finishing with the professional installation at your home or office. Each process is completed by a trained employee of Attard's Kitchens & Cabinetry who has a personal commitment to you, the customer.

Michael Attard has been designing and manufacturing not only kitchens, but a wide array of cabinetry to fulfil clients' needs for more than 23 years. Michael's attention to detail is seen in every aspect of his workmanship.

When designing this kitchen, traditional design was a very important aspect to the homeowners. It was also essential, due to the size of the room, that the kitchen have a grand presence. The massive island allows plenty of space for food prep while leaving enough room for walkways between the island and the counter. This helps in creating the bold reaction associated with this kitchen.
